MORGAN RETURNS WITH TREASURES

Brings Back $30,000 Worth Collected in Europe-Optimistic on Business -Only Question of Time When Steel Will Be List- MERIDEN'S MAYOR ed in Paris.

New York, July 22.—J. Pierpont Morgan, the banker, was the first man fo walk down the gang plank of the White Star steamship Majestic when she docked at 2:30 last night at the foot of Christopher street. He brought with him $30,000 worth of art objects, the promise that Americans would have a chance to see part of his European collection when the Hudson-Fulton exhibition begins, and the half-prophecy that it is but a question of time before Steel common will be listed in the Paris Bourse.

He would speak oply generally on questions of business and finance, saying that conditions in Europe seemed good and that in England he had seen no evidence of unusual business depression. The reporters found him seated alone on the starboard side of the promensed deck. He greeted them gentially, and after saying that he was in good health and ready for work, one of them asked him:

"If the present tariff goes through will it not enable you to bring your art collection here from England?"

"Well," eaid Mr. Morgan, "they look prestry good where they are."

"Well," eaid Mr. Morgan, "they look prestry sood where they are."

"Tes, but if there is no duty will we have a chance to see them? The people here would certainly like to see them."

"They will have a good chance to see some of the collection in September at the Hudson-Fulton exhibition."

"That matter has not been talked over with me, so I am in no position to talk about it," was his only comment.

The Majestic brought news from E. H. Harriman. Dr. Dixon, his physician, who left him recently, was in Mr. Morgan's party. Dr. Dixon said he had seen Mr. Harriman at Bad Gastein, "There is nothing organic the matter with him," said he. "He has had a long time of work and now he neeeds a long time of rest—that's all. No special trouble at all; his spine is all right. It is simply a case of overwork, and only rest can mend it. I

Barney Brady of Umpawaug Hill is the personification of the educated red man. Reading his lines with the finest enunciation, and the most delicate finesse. It is indeed a treat when he is on the stage. With a part that gives so many opportunities for over acting, it is indeed a source of pleasure to watch and listen to this wonderful conception of a most difficult role.

MRS. GILSON MAY HAVE MONEY BACK

The Supreme Court of Connecticut gave a final decision, yesterday, in the case of Mrs. Margaret Gilson vs. The Boston Realty Co. The decision sustains the finding of Justice of the Peace Harry P. Lyons and that of Judge Scott before whom the case was originally tried. The Realty Co, is directed to pay back to Mrs. Gilson all moneys paid by her, notwithstanding the terms of the contract which they there were more deficient of the properties.

Barney Brady of Umpawaug Hill was so badly mangled from being struck by a train at Norwalk a few days ago that the doctors who examined him thought he had only a few hours to live. He surprised them by making a speedy rally and is now believed to be out of danger.

Dan Beard and his family have gone to Pike County, Pa., where he has a log cabin to which he resorts yearly. During these sojourns he gathers materials for the nature sketches which he later develops for publication by the combined use of pen and pencil. During his absence his place at the Center will be occupied by F. W. Carpenter or New York.

Marshall Driggs, president of the Williamsburgh Insurance Co., started from here last week on a trip in his auto to Pennsylvania. With him as his guests were Miss Annie Banks and Misses Emma and Ruth Reld.

paying for his purchase although the contract calls for definite payments at certain periods. When the case was before Judge Scott he found that such a statement amounted to a formal extension of time.

Mrs. Gilson in August, 1996, purchased certain lots in Milford of the defendant company and made a payment of $25. She was credited with another payment of $16 for boarding the agents of the company. She neglected for some time to make any further payments and the company then closed her account and sold the land to another. Mrs. Gilson sued to receive the money already sold.

Greenlee had been in London several years before, when he was presented with the Victoria Cross by King Edwards. He gained the honor for signal bravery in saving a British gun in the engagement of the Boer War outside Voreeinging. When he returned on his tramp, Lord Roberts and Lord Buller remembered him and brought him before the King again. Edward greeted him warmly and because of the fact that both are Masons gave him a heavy gold ring with the Masonic insignia inlaid. He wished him success on his tramp and gave him letters to the British representatives in the countries he might have occasion to visit. Greenlee had been in London several

In his journey Greenlee has worn out 125 pairs of shoes and several suits of clothes. He still is strong, however, after covering more than 33,000 miles. His eyes hurt him. The dust of the roads seems to have caused some trouble that will be cured only by rest.

STUNG, SUES BEE OWNER

JUSTICE NOVEL POINT TO DECIDE IN SUIT BROUGHT BY CHARLES FIELDS AGAINST HIS NEIGH-BOR, FRANK GILMORE.

Winsted, July 22.-Justice of the Peace C. B. Atwood of Watertown has a novel law point to decide. It is, if a man's bees sting one of the neighbors can the latter collect damages from the bee owner?

Frank Gilmore keeps several hives of bees. His neighbor, Charles Fields who has been stung by them on his own premises, has brought suit against Mr. Gilmore. Beekeepers throughout Mr. Gilmore. Beekeepers throughout the state await the justice's decision with interest. There is a state law against live stock trespassing, but none against bees.

MENT OF MR. FLYNN TO SUC-CEED H. E. WATERS.

Major William Flynn, one of the most enthusiastic workers for the Knights of Columbus in this city, and who brought about the founding of John Rogers Council, has been appointed district deputy for District 8 by State Deputy James J. Kennedy of New Haven. Major Flynn will succeed Henry E. Waters of this city.

The news of the appointment will be received with a great deal of pleasure by the friends of Mr. Flynn. He is splendidly equipped for the work and his interest in the order assures is distance of a mile and a half from the outer works of the Spanish forces. The ammunition of the besieged Spanish troops is running low and there is hardly more than enough left to with-stand another charge of the Moors. The machine guns have been constantly at work since last Saturday and the firing has been especially heavy with these guns during the wild charges of the tribesmen. As a result General Marinau has given orders to conserve every round of ammunition.

The official messages declare that the garrison is in bad straits from this shortage of ammunition and it is ure by the friends of Mr. Flynn. He is splendidly equipped for the work and his interest in the order assures the members of a prosperous season during his term of office.
